Customer Reviews

âœYou'd rather,â • Mallory asked her best friend, Mary Ann, âœstudy spelling than spy on Max and Winnie?â • It was hard to believe that anyone would prefer spelling to snooping, but Mallory was sure in the mood for it. She just absolutely had to know what her brother Max and Winnie were doing in his room after school. Since they were âœofficially boyfriend and girlfriendâ • Max didn't want her to tag along. At all. It really wasn't fair because she was his sister and that Winnie was Mary Ann's stepsister. At any rate, their parents were going on a vacation âœget awayâ • for a week and it would be the perfect time to spy on them. It was VVI (very, very important) to find out what they were doing while her parents were gone. Mary Ann was going to be studying spelling with her boyfriend, C-Lo, so now was the time to act. Crystal, their babysitter, was VVI (very, very insistent) that she *âœ*stay out of other peopleâ™s businessâ• and that meant Max and Winnie. They claimed they were working on a science project and when Mallory made out her list of ten things they might be doing when they were alone in Maxâ™s room it wasnâ™t on there. Mrs. Daily, her third-grade teacher had talked about âœthreeâ™s a crowdâ• and now Crystal was talking about it too. It was time to put on her dark sunglasses, get out her magnifying glass, and tape recorder. Just what were they doing in that room? âœWhich part of 'we are working on our science projectâ™ is hard for you to understand?â• Max was really, really getting mad, but that could be a clue. Mallory never quit and she came up with a really good plan that even Mary Ann would think was VVI (very, very impressive). She was going to ask everyone to play a game of Hide-and-Seek. Then the mystery of what Max and Winnie were doing in his room would be officially solved ...
